

Allegheny County Coalition for Recovery The Consumer-Provider Collaborative

The Consumer–Provider Collaborative (CPC) is an organization composed of service users and service providers that has evolved since 2001 with the purpose of promoting open and honest communication between these two groups through the dialogue process. CPC has served as an advisory group to others who are interested in developing dialogues and promoting recovery. It also provides assistance in the planning and facilitation for the actual dialogue groups.

Dialogue Facilitator Training – Application

The interactive Dialogue Facilitator Training, taught by experienced facilitators, will provide participants with the information and skills necessary to feel knowledgeable about the “Consumer-Provider-Dialogue” process and comfortable with facilitation.

What is a dialogue?

A facilitated honest and respectful discussion among and between people who receive and provide mental health services about their individual experiences with the behavioral health service system, their roles in that system and, most importantly, their relationships with each other.

What are the benefits of dialogue?

- Improves communication
- Helps people work as a team
- Encourages understanding
- Supports recovery and individual empowerment
- Works to make the System more recovery oriented
